Mr. Gheewhan Kim
Minister for Economic Affairs
Embassy of the Republic of Korea in the United States
2450 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20008

Re: Engagement Letter: Advice on Professional Visas

Dear Minister Kim:

We are very pleased to confirm that Covington & Burling LLP will represent the Embassy of the Republic of Korea in the United States in the Embassy's efforts to secure U.S. legislation for professional visas as a follow on to the Korea-U.S. Free Trade Agreement. It is a privilege to work with the Embassy on this important matter.¹

We understand that the Embassy will be our client in this representation and not any other affiliates or related parties, including other agencies of the government of Korea. If by subsequent agreement our services are extended to other matters, the provisions of this letter will also apply to that representation unless it is otherwise agreed in writing.

Alan Larson and I will be in charge of the engagement, but other professionals will be called upon as needed, including Marty Gold and Jonathan Wakely. Our statements will be rendered monthly.

Scope of the Work: Provide advice on a legislative initiative for professional visas for Korean citizens and increase support for the legislation based on the unique attributes of the U.S.-Korea economic partnership, as evidenced in the Korea-U.S. Free Trade Agreement.

¹ Covington & Burling LLP is a limited liability partnership organized under the laws of the District of Columbia. Under this form of partnership, a partner's personal assets are not subject to claims against the firm (and other partners) based on contracts, professional negligence or other liability unless the partner is personally liable based on his or her own conduct.

Mr. Gheewhan Kim

Continue to engage with relevant leaders in the U.S. Congress to build support for the proposal and corresponding justifications.

Contract Terms: The contract term is February 1, 2013, through July 31, 2013, with a fee of $20,000 per month. The charges for support service, taxes, and other charges are covered by the monthly fee.

We would expect payment of our statements in full within 60 days of receipt. If you have a question regarding a particular charge or other aspect of a statement, we hope you will raise it with us, but we would expect timely payment of the portion not subject to question. If any statement remains unpaid for more than 90 days, we may cease performing services until satisfactory arrangements have been made for payment of outstanding statements and payment of future statements.

Our records reveal no existing representation of another client on any matter adverse to you. On matters that are not related to the subject matter of our representation of the Embassy, we would not be prevented from taking positions for other clients that might not be in accord with the position of the Embassy, although Covington will be sensitive to the possibility of misunderstandings or other problems that might arise from particular adverse relationships. In such a situation we would seek to consult appropriately. For example, we may represent other firm clients on market access issues in Korea as long as the matter is not related to the subject matter of our representation of the Embassy. We understand the term "matter" to refer to transactions, negotiations, proceedings, advisory work, and other representations involving specific parties.

You consent (i) to our representing as clients, in other matters in which they are not adverse to you, parties who are adverse to you in matters in which we do represent you and (ii) to our representing clients in business transactions, counseling, litigation, legislation or other matters in which they are adverse to you provided that any such matter has no substantial relationship to any matter in which we represent or have represented you.

As you know, Covington and its professionals have registered with the Department of Justice under the Foreign Agents Registration Act for this matter. You understand that our registration will disclose certain information concerning this matter, including this engagement letter, and we will be required to file periodic supplemental statements with the Department of Justice that will disclose additional information concerning our activities.

Covington is a large law firm that represents a broad array of clients with diverse interests, some of which may now or in the future be adverse to the government of the Republic of Korea, either broadly or with respect to specific ministries or agencies, without posing a conflict with respect to our work on visa issues under this engagement. We will work with you on a case-by-case basis to address concerns that you may have, including the use of strong ethical walls to address potential conflict issues.

HIGHLY SKILLED WORKERS: GOOD FOR THE ECONOMY-GOOD FOR THE UNITED STATES

OVERVIEW

Highly skilled workers boost U.S. competitiveness in the world market, stimulate job creation here in the U.S. and are essential to a vibrant and innovative economy. As Free Trade Agreements (FTAs) open up new markets to the free flow of goods and services, the exchange of skilled professionals with language and regional expertise enables U.S. business and exporters to better understand the foreign markets and take advantage of the newly created business opportunities.

Congress passed the U.S. Korea Free Trade agreement in 2011, and implementation began in March of this year. U.S. businesses and exporters need highly skilled Korean nationals to take full advantage of the opportunities in sectors as varied as media, telecommunications, agriculture and legal services. Allowing additional highly skilled Korean workers to bring their talents to the U.S. recognizes the business realities of having further opened markets with a major U.S. trading partner.

Congress has complemented recent free trade agreements with an allotment of high skilled visas for the FTA partner country, including: Australia, Canada, Chile, Mexico, and Singapore. Each time, Congress has also carefully included protections to ensure that these visa holders do not take jobs that American workers could fill.

“If Washington is serious about job creation, it needs to stop turning away the very people we need to create the new businesses and jobs of tomorrow that our country's success depends on.”

New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg

BUILDING ON A VIBRANT EXCHANGE OF CITIZENS

Korea allows an unlimited number of highly-skilled U.S. citizens to obtain work in the Korean market. By contrast, only about 3,500 Koreans are able to secure high skilled visas each year in the U.S., despite the fact that each highly-skilled worker creates an additional 2.5 jobs.

Korea sends more students to study in the U.S. per capita than any other country. In 2009, while 2,100 U.S. students studied in Korea, 72,000 Korean students spent $2 billion to live and study in the U.S. Yet upon completing school, most Korean graduates cannot obtain U.S. work visas. Instead of filling vital skills gaps and founding high-tech start-ups in the U.S., they take their skills elsewhere.

According to the Brookings Institution, immigrants were key founders of 39 percent of the engineering and technology companies started in California between 1995 and 2005, and of more than 25 percent of the engineering and technology companies founded nationwide during those same years. In 2005, these companies produced $52 billion in sales and employed 450,000 people.

This information is being disseminated by Kirsten Chadwick on behalf of the government of the Republic of Korea. Additional information is on file with the Department of Justice, Washington, DC.

AN INDISPENSIBLE ALLY

The U.S.-Korean relationship is based on strong political, security, and economic ties that have developed over more than 60 years. Korea supports U.S. economic and strategic priorities around the world, across issues as varied as prudential financial regulation, environmental sustainability and nuclear security.

STRONG ECONOMIC PARTNERSHIP

The Korean economy is fast-growing and dynamic, supported by world class intellectual property protections. The World Bank has ranked Korea as the eighth easiest place to do business.

- Korea is the U.S.'s seventh-largest trading partner. In 2011, U.S. Korean bilateral trade reached $145 billion, an increase of 44% in just two years.
- Between 2008 and 2011, Korean companies invested $13.9 billion throughout the U.S., broadening the local tax base in the communities where they invest, and creating jobs for American workers.
- In 2008, of the more than 20,000 U.S. companies that exported to Korea--nearly 90% were Small and Medium-sized Enterprises (SMEs) who exported $14.2 billion, or nearly 60% of all U.S. goods exports to Korea.

“Artificially low limits on visas and serious bureaucratic obstacles prevent employers from hiring the people they need – and send entrepreneurs to other countries”

The Partnership for a New American Economy & the Partnership for New York City

Facilitating access to the U.S. for highly skilled Koreans will spur new bilateral trade and investment opportunities. Both countries benefit from a vibrant exchange of goods, services, professionals, tourists and students.

*Enrico Moretti, 2010. “Local Multipliers.” American Economic Review (American Economic Association) 100 (2, May): 373-377

Partner With Korea Act of 2013

What this Legislation does:

The “Korea Free Trade Agreement Visa Act of 2013” would encourage further economic activity between the United States and South Korea by creating a special class of professional work visas.

Specifically:

- Bill would allow for up to 15,000 professional EB-4 visas each year for Korean nationals
- Qualified visa applicants must have specialized education and employment requiring specialized skills
- Congress has also carefully included protections to ensure that these visa holders do not take jobs that American workers could fill.

Why is this legislation needed:

In October of 2011, Congress passed the U.S. Korea Free Trade Agreement (FTA), and implementation began in March of 2012. The FTA will increase access to the Korean market, providing job opportunities for highly skilled workers from both countries.

Congress has complemented recent FTAs with an allotment of highly skilled visas for the partner country. These highly skilled professionals provide the language skills and regional expertise that have helped to fully maximize the benefits of these Free Trade Agreements, and Korea is no different.

U.S. businesses and exporters need highly skilled workers to take full advantage of newly created export opportunities in Korea in sectors as varied as media, telecommunications, agriculture, and legal services. This bill is designed to ensure that American employers are positioned to take advantage of the opportunities provided by the FTA. Facilitating access to the U.S. for highly skilled Koreans will support new bilateral trade and investment opportunities created by this FTA.

The U.S. International Trade Commission has estimated that the tariff cuts alone in the U.S.-Korea trade agreement will increase exports of American goods by approximately $10.5 billion. Every billion dollars in exports supports an estimated 5,000 American jobs. U.S. businesses will benefit from access to these skilled individuals, and only Congress can make these workers available.

Korea Free Trade Agreement:

Passed by Congress in 2011, an updated U.S. Korea Free Trade Agreement and implementation began in March of 2012. Almost 80 percent of U.S. exports to Korea of consumer and industrial products will become duty free on March 15, 2012, and nearly 95 percent of bilateral trade in consumer and industrial products will become duty free within five years of that date. Most remaining tariffs would be eliminated within 10 years. The FTA will increase access to the Korean market and ensure greater transparency and fair treatment for U.S. manufacturers and service providers.
